

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 2017 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Our summer heat wave continues in full force! The upper-level ridge of high pressure remains strong and in place over the Great Plains. Expect little change in this pattern until late Saturday. With the on-going heat and humidity, we will (again) see an afternoon heat index close to 105 degrees today. These values peak tomorrow and Saturday, as the heat index tops out at 106 degrees thanks to dew points in the upper 60s and air temperature near 100. A south-southwest wind is expected today at 8 to 14 mph, along with gusts to about 22 mph. A southwest wind by tomorrow with gusts to 24 mph. A west-south west wind expected on Saturday with similar gusts. Looks like a front will be nearing Kansas by Saturday evening from the north, bringing scattered storms into our forecast for Saturday night and on Sunday. With such extreme heat for the rest of the championship, PLEASE SEEK SHADE AND STAY HYDRATED!
