

FRIDAY, JULY 21, 2017 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

The hot, humid, and breezy weather rages on again today! As usual, the upper-level ridge of high pressure remains strong and anchored in place over the Great Plains until late tomorrow. With the on-going heat and humidity, we will see an afternoon heat index close to 106 degrees today and tomorrow, thanks to dew points in the upper 60s and air temperatures near 100. A southwest wind is expected today at 8 to 16 mph, along with gusts to about 24 mph. A west-southwest wind by tomorrow with gusts to 23 mph. I'm still tracking a weak cold front that will be nearing Kansas by tomorrow evening from the north, bringing scattered storms into our forecast for tomorrow night and on Sunday. This front will also bring some relief to Wichita early next week with highs near 90 instead of near 100. With such extreme heat for the rest of the championship, PLEASE SEEK SHADE AND STAY HYDRATED!
