

FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 2018 – 6:30 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Today will be seasonably warmer and more humid with sunshine mixing with some clouds this morning, and skies turning cloudier as the afternoon wears on. The high will reach 80 F/ 27 C. Winds will be from the west becoming southwest around 5 mph, increasing to 5-10 mph with a high gust of 14 mph this afternoon, with a southerly breeze kicking in late in the afternoon. It will be partly cloudy and not as cool tonight. There's a 20 percent chance for a sprinkle or shower later tonight, mostly south/west of the course. A front will approach the area tomorrow, with more clouds than sun and a 20 percent chance for a shower, mostly south/west of the course. A slightly better chance for showers/storms comes later in the day and at night, but the trend is for the best chance for rain to bypass us to the south/west. The high will reach 77 F/25 C. A second storm will again clip us to the south later on Sunday, but the weather is expected to remain mild and probably rain-free through the final matches.
