

SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 2018 – 6:30 AM WEATHER FORECAST

A weak cold front will settle to the south of the area today, bringing some less humid air in from the north, but the weather will stay mild with today's high reaching 80 degrees F/27 C. Skies will generally be sunny with with some patchy clouds crossing the area this morning, then the afternoon will gradually become mostly cloudy as a wave of low pressure tracks to our southwest. Winds this morning will be northerly around 5 mph, but a seabreeze will develop around early to mid afternoon, so a switch to more southerly winds will bring a slight cool-down in the mid to late afternoon. Tonight will be a bit cooler with plenty of clouds but any rain remaining to the southwest of the NYC metro area. It will not be as warm nor as humid tomorrow with some morning sun followed by a cloudier afternoon, as the high reaches 75 F/24 C. Winds tomorrow will start out northeasterly but become southeasterly in the afternoon at slightly higher speeds. Cooler air will settle in for tomorrow night and Monday morning.
