BACKGROUND

Endurance International Group, formerly Bizland, was established by Hari Ravichandran, CEO and Founder, as the internet started taking off in 1997. Endurance was majorly affected by, but survived, the dot com bubble burst in the late 1990s and early 2000s, and emerged as Endurance International Group in 2003. With its new identity, Endurance took on a multi-brand strategy, growing through the acquisition of well-known web presence and marketing brands, including Bluehost, HostGator, and Constant Contact. Despite its rapid growth, the company's purpose has remained the same: to become the premier online platform for small business globally. Now with an international presence and a broad suite of products, Endurance offers solutions to small businesses all over the world.
