2024 Planning & Progress Study

The Financial States of America

Northwestern Mutual is the marketing name for The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company (NM), Milwaukee, WI and its subsidiaries.
Background & Methodology

Background
The 2024 Planning & Progress Study, a research series from Northwestern Mutual, explores US adults’ attitudes and behaviors toward money, financial decision-making, and the broader issues impacting people’s long-term financial security.

Methodology
The Harris Poll conducted a total of 4,588 online interviews among the general U.S. adult (18+) population between January 3rd and January 17th. Included in this overall total is a sample of 831 High-Net-Worth individuals (those with total household investable assets, excluding pensions, retirement plans and property, greater than $1,000,000).

Data for the general U.S. population (including the High-Net-Worth oversample) were weighted to Census targets for education, age, gender, race/ethnicity, region and household income. A full methodology is available.
Just over half (54%) of U.S. adults expect the United States will enter a recession this year. While still a majority, it’s a substantial drop from the two-thirds (67%) who predicted a recession last year.

Do you believe the US economy will officially enter into a recession in 2024?

- 67% Yes
- 33% No

2023: 33%
2024: 46%

BASE: ALL QUALIFIED RESPONDENTS (n=4588)
Q2300 To begin, do you believe the US economy will officially enter into a recession in 2024?
These more positive economic expectations are consistent across generations, with double-digit increases in optimism among Gen Z, Millennials, Gen X and Boomers+ alike.

Q1575. What are the greatest obstacles to achieving financial security in retirement? Please select up to three.
When asked to rank the concerns that could impact people’s finances the most in 2024, “inflation” (57%) topped the list but “government dysfunction” (34%) and “the U.S. Presidential Election” (33%) ranked second and third, coming in ahead of longer-term worries.
Given current market and economic conditions, 42% of U.S. adults feel 2024 is a year to prioritize “playing defense” with their savings and investments (managing risk to protect their assets) vs. 29% who feel it’s a year to be “playing offense” (capitalizing on opportunities to grow their assets); and 29% are unsure.
The gameplan for those who favor playing defense is mostly focused on cutting costs (56%) and building savings (51%). Younger generations score higher on adding a side hustle, whereas higher numbers of high-net-worth individuals – people with more than $1 million in investable assets – reported moving into safe, high-yielding instruments like money market funds.

Q1005. When it comes to financial planning, which of the following best describes the type of financial planner you are?
Despite high levels of financial insecurity, many Americans don’t expect to largely pull back their spending on discretionary things like restaurants, vacations and entertainment in 2024. The research finds 59% of U.S. adults say they’ll either spend the same or more on these purchases year-over-year, while just under four in 10 (37%) say they’ll spend less.
Among generations, Gen Z is the most likely to say they’ll increase non-essential spending and Gen X is the most likely to say they’ll be tightening their belts.
