

WHAT IS A DEDUCTIBLE?

Turns out it's not that complicated. It's really just a question: If you get in an accident, how much can you afford to pay out of pocket? (Hint: $0 isn't an option.)

With car insurance, you'll be protected to a certain extent for any covered accidents you're involved in. The "deductible" is how much you're required to pay before your insurance kicks in. Thankfully, because people have different budgets, you have options when it comes to the amount of your deductible.
