

THURSDAY, AUGUST 31, 2017 – 6:30 AM WEATHER FORECAST

We're finishing in fine fashion for finals today. A little cooler today, but nice. We'll start out in the middle 50s and warm up to a pleasant high near 75. Sunny skies to start the morning, though a little cloudiness at times, before a mostly sunny afternoon ensues. Tonight's low near 55 degrees. Winds will be slowly backing from the east to the south during the course of the day. Wind speeds mainly 6 to 12 mph, but a few hours will have 7 to 14 mph. A light southeast wind tonight. For those still in town this holiday, Labor Day weekend, you can expect nice weather most of the time. However, a cold front will deliver scattered showers and storms Friday night and Saturday morning. It will be warm on Sunday with a high close to 85. The remnants of Harvey have left Texas. Still a mess there.
