

MONDAY, AUGUST 6, 2018 – 6:30 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Quiet weather to start today, but scattered afternoon showers and storms still expected. Look for a 30% chance from mid-afternoon on. As moisture continues to gather to our south and west, the showers and storms continue for the next several days and primarily in the afternoon/evening hours. Exceptions to this now appear to be on (especially) Wednesday and Thursday, when showers and storms will be more numerous and occur at almost any time. Lower chances for Friday and the weekend, but not looking rain-free. Expect calm or very light winds this morning, followed by a southwest wind at 5 to 10 mph this afternoon. Winds just a touch stronger tomorrow and more from the west-southwest. High temperature this afternoon at 91 degrees. Low tonight forecast at 71. No real change to our mugginess, until Friday, when dew points drop from the lower 70s to the upper 60s. Some fog is possible late Thursday night and Friday night. I'll keep a watch.
