MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 2019 – 6:45 AM WEATHER FORECAST

After a mostly cloudy start to the day, skies will turn sunnier later this morning, with temperatures warming from the 60s into the 70s before lunch. The afternoon will be partly sunny and warm with the wind picking up some later in the day. While much of the area is expected to stay dry, an isolated shower or storm can't be ruled out later in the afternoon or early this evening as a disturbance tracks through. Today's high will be 84 and winds will vary from south to southwest in the morning to northwest shifting to southeast later this afternoon. Speeds will be relatively low this morning, then will pick up to 5-10 mph with higher gusts to 16 mph later on. Tonight will stay mild with some clouds and a low in the upper 50s. Expect more in the way of sun and wind tomorrow with sunshine and some clouds and a high of 82. Winds of 10-15 mph from the southwest could gust to 24-28 mph in the afternoon. It will turn cooler tomorrow night, then Wednesday will be mostly sunny and mild with gusty southerly winds and a high near 80. Winds will increase some more for Thursday as a cold front moves in, bringing a slight chance for late-day and night-time showers and storms, then Friday will be windy and cooler.
