THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 2019 – 6:45 AM WEATHER FORECAST

After a seasonably chilly start, expect a quick warm-up this morning with sunny skies and temperatures jumping 30 degrees from sunrise to lunch time with winds from the south to southwest increasing to 5-10 mph with a gust to 20 mph possible towards noon. Some clouds will build up this afternoon as the wind continues to pick up, averaging 10-15 mph with gusts to 25-28 mph later from the south to southeast. Today's high will reach 84 degrees. Chances for rain are a bit lower until late in the day, when a sprinkle or shower could affect Douglas County. Chances for thunder are very low, but can't be ruled out after 5:30 p.m. Tonight will remain windy as low pressure tracks across eastern Colorado. A few sprinkles or showers could cross the area at any point as winds tonight could gust to 30 mph. Tomorrow will remain warm with windy conditions and a slight chance for an afternoon shower or storm, with winds becoming southwesterly to westerly and gusting to 30-35 mph later in the day, lessening during the evening as cooler air returns.
