

TUESDAY, JUNE 15, 2021 – 5 AM WEATHER FORECAST

There are a few random batches of low clouds near Torrey Pines this morning, but generally the satellite imagery shows increasing mid and high level moisture approaching from the south and east. Therefore expect periods of sunshine mixed with clouds, mainly mid and high clouds. Temps are starting off 2 degrees warmer this morning just above 60 degrees and we'll see if we get enough sunshine filtered through the upper atmospheric moisture to get our high temp around 70 degrees. Onshore winds will be on the lighter side today generally staying at or below 10 mph, then we'll see more wind on Wednesday shortly after dawn as well as early to mid afternoon coming more from the south with some gusts in the teens. This more coastally paralleled flow could allow us to climb well into the 70s when the mid and high clouds during the first half of Wednesday give way to more sunshine as the afternoon progresses.
