

THURSDAY, JULY 15, 2021 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Our hot and hazy weather pattern will continue into this Thursday across the course, so once again please take extra steps towards ensuring proper hydration and sun protection. Clouds will be on the increase by midday, so that may provide just slight relief from the intense UV Index, and there may even be a bit of smoke aloft from wildfires out west. The good news is that overall high pressure will have better control today and that means a reduced risk of thunder. There may be a few showers that move through late tonight, but overall once again Friday looks mostly dry and hot. As we look to Championship Saturday, an approaching cold front will still be our “weather wildcard,” though at present it’s associated active weather may hold off until late in the Saturday with a bit of luck. Stay tuned!
