

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 2021 – 10 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Another bright and warm scenario to start the day weather-wise here at Westchester CC this Saturday! Don't forget both the sunglasses and sunscreen as once again this August-like pattern will be bringing with it another high UV Index day as well. As we head into the afternoon round of golf, we do expect additional cloud cover to build in across the skies. Warm southerly breezes continue to pour in, generally in the 5 - 10 mph range, but with a few higher gusts that could approach 15mph. This southerly flow will also bring up our humidity another notch so once again Heat Index "real feel" temps could push above 90F in the early afternoon. Later in the afternoon, an area of low pressure to our south will begin to move into our area, providing thicker clouds overnight and a good chance for rain showers to dampen the course overnight into Sunday morning. However, by midday Sunday any rain shower activity should diminish as this disturbance moves northward and out to sea, leaving partly sunny and somewhat milder conditions to finish out our Championship Sunday!
