

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20th, 2022 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

A quick shower dropped 0.04" prior to sunrise this morning. A hit or miss chance for another spotty shower through 8am, in before a mix of more sun than clouds throughout the day. Winds will occasionally gust in the upper mid 20s and stay breezy all day. Our high temperature near 96 degrees and an increase in humidity will send our Heat Index between 105 - 110 degrees at times so please stay well hydrated and take occasional breaks in the shade or inside. The chance for a shower or storm will increase from 40% ahead of the approaching cold front to 60% with the anticipated line of storms along the front later this evening into overnight. Clouds begin to squeeze out through Thursday morning following the frontal passage with winds turning out of the north. We look to heat up and stay mostly dry with temperatures climbing through the lower to mid 90s into Friday as we look for the upper 90s near the end of the Championship.
