

TUESDAY, AUGUST 16, 2022 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Our dry weather lives another day. An east/northeast wind pattern joins us this morning with gusts up to 18 mph, perhaps bringing a singular gust near 20 mph before relaxing through the late afternoon and evening. The peak strength of this flow should focus between 10 AM and 3 PM. Partly cloudy skies open the gates for temperatures above 80 this afternoon, dropping off to the lower 60s once again after sunset. Wednesday brings the strongest chance of showers through the end of the week, where an odd setup could produce an afternoon shower or mini-thunderstorm. This will be watched closely in the next few forecasts, but the threat remains scattered throughout our region on Wednesday afternoon.
