

SATURDAY, AUGUST 27, 2022 – 5 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Light winds and clear skies overnight will have fog developing over the course this morning but, like we have seen earlier this week, it will be short lived as the sun comes up burning it off before the 8 AM hour. The rest of the day Saturday looks like another ideal day to play and watch golf here at NCR with temperatures warming into the 70s mid morning while winds start the stay light out of the ENE before becoming easterly as temps continue to climb into the mid 80s late this afternoon. The building ridge across the region will have temperatures warmer for Sunday with high now looking to climb to near 90 degrees while winds continue to shift over to the SE and increasing in speeds from Saturday as the finish up the afternoon blowing primarily from the south bringing with it moisture into the area allowing for a slight chance for scattered showers and storms to develop late Sunday afternoon.
