

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 2022 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Our calm morning weather will be affected by a frontal passage this afternoon. Afternoon showers/thundershowers are especially a risk for Erin Hills between 2 - 6 PM. Temperatures will cool down as the winds switch to a northern breeze, leaving Erin Hills in the low to mid 70s this afternoon. The slow moving front will eventually come to a halt in our area, and additional showers fill in overnight into Sunday morning. On Sunday, a light morning rain will devolve into the potential for heavy afternoon rainfall. At least 0.50" is expected at both locations on Sunday. Cool temperatures under 65 degrees and a stiff north-northeast wind up to 21 mph will contribute to poor conditions on Sunday afternoon. We look to escape the wrath of the system completely by Tuesday afternoon!
