

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 2022 – 2 PM WEATHER FORECAST

A cool yet pleasant day keeps going. The eastern wind dies off quickly at sunset, lending way to a night in the mid to lower 50s. A thin veil of fog may reappear Thursday morning, but the thickness should allow for a quick burn off around 7:30 AM, if there is any fog at all. Tomorrow's sky will be painted with mostly high-level clouds, but peeks of sunshine and southern winds up to 18 mph will hoist temps to 75 degrees or more. Be on the lookout for showers and thundershowers as soon as 6 PM Friday, but chances are more confined to overnight Friday and late Saturday afternoon/evening.
