Allisen Corpuz Wins the 2023 Championship

Late Friday afternoon, Hawaii's greatest female golf ambassador, Michelle Wie West, exited the U.S. Women's Open stage at Pebble Beach Golf Links with an emotional farewell. Two days later, a new star from the 50th state took a familiar stroll down the iconic par-5 18th hole. But this time, the cheers were for the latest winner of this storied championship, Allisen Corpuz.

Corpuz, 25, joined her fellow Hawaiian as a U.S. Women's Open champion, shooting a final-round, 3-under-par 69 (72-hole total of 9-under 279) to claim the 78th edition by three strokes over Charley Hull (66) and Jiyai Shin (68).

Bailey Tardy (73), the surprise 36-hole leader who came into this championship No. 455 in the Rolex Golf Rankings, and 54-hole leader Nasa Hataoka (76), who shot a third-round 66, shared fourth at 3-under-par 285.

Ayaka Furue and 2014 Amundi Evian champion Hyo Joo Kim tied for sixth at 2-under 286, while Hae Ran Ryu was two more strokes back at even-par 288. Newly minted professional Rose Zhang shot a final-round 72 to share ninth and defending champion Minjee Lee tied for 13th.

Corpuz, a graduate of the University of Southern California, became the first American since Brittany Lang in 2016 to hoist the Harton S. Semple Trophy and only the seventh in the last 23 years.

The member of the victorious 2021 USA Curtis Cup Team also joined a long list of players to make the U.S. Women's Open their first win on the LPGA Tour, a group that includes World Golf Hall of Famers Annika Sorenstam and Laura Davies.

"My mind is racing," said Corpuz, the first to win a women's major title at Pebble Beach. "Like I said yesterday, this is really a dream come true. It was something I had dreamed of, but at the same time kind of just never really expected it to happen."

Composed and comfortable in the cauldron that is a final round of a major championship, Corpuz was simply stellar on the greens, registering 10 one-putts, including a clutch 16-footer for par on the par-3 12th. She played the final 11 holes on what is Pebble's most difficult stretch in 1 under par. That included birdies on Nos. 10, 14 and 15 without any putts longer than 10 feet. She also was the only player in the field to post all four rounds under par.

All of this occurred as Hull, a 27-year-old Englishwoman, made a Sunday charge reminiscent of what Meg Mallon produced 19 years ago when she shot a 65 to beat Sorenstam and claim her second U.S. Women's Open title. Hull matched the week's best round with six birdies and an eagle offset by two bogeys. Starting the day seven strokes back, Hull came out sizzling with an eagle on No. 2 and birdies on the third and fourth holes. She later holed a 30-footer on No. 16 that sent a roar through the property.

That early statement sent a message to Corpuz and Hataoka in the day's final pairing.

Corpuz was more than up to the task with birdies on Nos. 1 and 3. A player who will always be intertwined with Wie West – she surpassed her as the youngest qualifier in U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links history – had been close in year's two previous major championships. She shared the 54-hole lead at the Chevron Championship in The Woodlands, Texas, only to finish tied for fourth with a final-round 74. Two weeks ago, she carded a 69 on Sunday to tie for 15th in the KPMG Women's PGA Championship at Baltusrol Golf Club.

On Sunday at Pebble Beach, she finished the job to become the 20th first-time major champion in the last 21 contested.

After celebrating with her caddie, Jay Monahan (not related to the PGA Tour Commissioner), she was met by both of her parents and Mary Bea Porter-King, who ran the Hawaii State Junior Golf Association that helped produce the likes of Wie West, Corpuz, fellow Curtis Cup players Stephanie Kono and Mariel Galdiano and many others who have gone on to play collegiate golf.

"My goal with the Hawaii State Junior Golf Association was to provide more playing opportunities for junior golfers in Hawaii," said Porter-King, a former USGA Executive Committee member. "And also help them understand how important it was to play in USGA championships. It is hard to be a national champion unless you play in a USGA championship."

"As one of our HSJGA alumni retires (Wie West), another one, rises to the top."

Notable

Newly minted champion Allisen Corpuz received a shoutout from former U.S. President Barack Obama on Twitter, like Corpuz and Michelle Wie West, a graduate of The Punahou School in Hawaii.

Qualifier Jenny Coleman added a few more dollars to her back account after shooting 19 strokes better on Sunday, going from a third-round 87 to a 68.

Benedetta Moresco, of Italy, took home low-amateur honors by one stroke over Aine Donegan, of the Republic of Ireland, after shooting a final-round 73. The University of Alabama rising senior finished at 8-over 296.

Bailey Tardy (T-4) was the only qualifier to finish among the top 10 scorers and ties to earn an exemption into next year's U.S. Women's Open.

Championship History

The U.S. Women's Open was added to the USGA's roster of championships in 1953, 58 years after the first U.S. Women's Amateur. The reason for the USGA's relatively late assumption of the Women's Open is simple: women's professional golf is fairly new. When Opal Hill turned professional in 1938, she and Helen Hicks were two of the very few women golf professionals in the world.

Unlike the other 14 national championships conducted by the USGA, the Women's Open was created by another organization. In 1946, the short-lived Women's Professional Golfers Association introduced the Women's Open at match play at the Spokane (Wash.) Country Club. The Spokane Athletic Round Table, a men's fraternal organization, contributed the $19,700 purse from its slot machines proceeds.

The first Women's Open was the only one conducted at match play. Patty Berg won the 36-hole qualifying medal in 1946, with rounds of 72-73—145, then won the championship by defeating Betty Jameson, 5 and 4, in the 36-hole final.

The small membership of the WPGA ran the championship for three years. By 1949, however, women's professional golf was making significant strides and the Ladies Professional Golf Association was founded. A group of 11 women, including Berg, Jameson, Louise Suggs and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, established the new association to provide organized tournaments for women professionals. The LPGA ran the Women's Open for four years, but in 1953 asked the USGA to conduct the championship. The first Women's Open under the USGA flag was played at the Country Club of Rochester, in upstate New York, where Betsy Rawls won the second of her four Women's Open titles (1951, 1953, 1957, 1960).

Conducted by the USGA ever since, the Women's Open is the oldest championship open to women professionals and amateurs. Rawls and Mickey Wright, the only other four-time winner (1958, 1959, 1961, 1964) were the championship's dominant players from 1957 through 1964, winning six Women's Opens between them during those eight years. In 1967, Catherine Lacoste, daughter of French tennis player Rene Lacoste and 1927 British Ladies Amateur Champion Simone Thion de la Chaume, became the only amateur to win the Women's Open.

In its 77-year history, the U.S. Women's Open has reigned as the world's greatest women's championship, attracting steadily increasing numbers of entries and spectators. Whereas only 37 contestants played in 1953, in 1976 the field jumped to 205 players and sectional qualifying was introduced. In 2001, a then-record 980 contestants entered. A four-day attendance record of 41,200 was set in 1979 at Brooklawn Country Club in Fairfield, Conn. At the 50th Women's Open, in 1995, that record was more than doubled at The Broadmoor Golf Club in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In recent years, the U.S. Women's Open has truly become the world arena of women's golf. Since 1990, 17 championships have been won by international players, while only three of the first 41 champions were foreign-born. The emergence of the Women's Open as a great international contest came in 1987, when England's Laura Davies prevailed in an 18-hole playoff against Japan's Ayako Okamoto and JoAnne Gunderson Carner of the United States.

Annika Sorenstam won the second of her three U.S. Women's Open championships in 1996 and set a then 72-hole scoring mark of 272 (8 under). Juli Inkster matched that 72-hole score of 272, also setting a record in relation to par at 16 under, in 1999. In Gee Chun returned an 8-under 272 in 2015 at Lancaster Country Club, where she became just the fourth player to capture the Women's Open title in her first championship appearance.

In 2002, qualifying for the Women's Open was held in two stages for the first time — 18 holes for local qualifying and 36 holes for sectional qualifying. Since 2010, there has been one stage — a 36-hole final qualifier. Additionally, in 2014, the USGA held international qualifying for the first time in championship history. Qualifying was conducted at sites in the People's Republic of China, England, Japan and the Republic of Korea.

Entries for the U.S. Women's Open also have topped the 1,000 mark every year since 2004, illustrating the global growth of women's golf.

In 2020, the U.S. Women's Open was postponed from June to December due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Final qualifying was canceled which resulted in an all-exempt field. The 156-player field competed on two courses over the opening two rounds due to less daylight in the fall.

Minjee Lee established the 72-hole scoring record of 271 (13 under) with her four-stroke victory in the 2022 championship at Pine Needles Lodge & Golf Club. In 2023, iconic Pebble Beach (Calif.) Golf Links hosted the championship for the first time and the purse was elevated to $11 million, with the champion receiving $2 million.
