

FRIDAY, JULY 19, 2024 – PRELIMINARY WEATHER OUTLOOK

Fantastic showing this afternoon with more sun than clouds around with temps slightly cooler near 80 degrees. This refreshing feel with near average temps will hold on this weekend and into next week, but as our humidity slowly returns back in the forecast. With that, a weak cold front will sink into North Michigan, but struggle reaching us here Sunday into Monday. This will lend to an increase in cloud cover and only a 20% isolated chance for a shower/rumble during the afternoon, moreso on Monday. Our drier weather pattern will break down heading towards midweek with a broad system moving in the region, offering higher 60% chances for rain showers and even some rumbles Tuesday through Thursday. As this system lingers, I will see an increase in clouds and our winds during this time, with gusts currently projecting to range in the mid to upper teens during the afternoon WED and THU. I am hopeful for this upper level system to vacate the area late week for a drier finish to the championship.
