

WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 2024 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

A bit soggy out there with the heavy storm that brought us 0.86" of rain last night with hopes of not adding too much or any to that total today. Have your rain jacket and umbrella handy as some sprinkles are possible this morning with the chances slightly increasing for a light shower late morning. This cold front is trying to sneak south of us early this afternoon, but will still try to fight us and potentially bring a low chance for a scattered shower to hold some rumbles. Our westerly flow will be prominent throughout the day and along with this cloud cover, temps will be cooler and steady in the mid to upper 70s. A few lingering showers will be around the Detroit area late afternoon as our overall weather pattern begins to improve.
