

TUESDAY, AUGUST 13, 2024 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Today will start off with a thin veil of ground fog, quickly burning off around 7 AM. More sunshine is expected, with some partly cloudy skies arriving in the afternoon. South/southeast winds will start up in the late morning, becoming noticeable by lunchtime. Gusts will only reach the mid teens between 2 and 5 PM, with a continuation of the wind overnight. Wednesday starts off pleasant, but the increased moisture will lead to initial chances of rainfall after lunchtime Wednesday. Strong southeasterly winds will also be in place for Wednesday, with gusts in the upper 20s possible through the day. The low pressure system arrives overnight into Thursday, casting impacts on the order of 0.50 to 1.00"+ inches of rain. The system should slowly depart on Friday, leaving a relatively nice weekend in its wake.
