TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 2024 - 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

The wind shift masquerading as a cold front passed by early this morning allowing skies to clear off just as the sun is coming up for the round of 32. Winds will be light for the first matches out, picking up from the west/northwest at 4 - 6 mph settling out of the NW this afternoon as intensity jumps once again up to 8 - 10 mph for the round of 16. Cloud cover overnight has us starting out a handful of degrees warmer but the influence of the mid - level trough is still limiting our heating capabilities. Under mostly clear skies temps will climb into the upper 60s late this morning, settling in the mid 70s for play this afternoon. As flow aloft because zonal and clouds dissipate across the area this afternoon and overnight, temps will once again be down near 50 degrees for the start of play on Wednesday, but as that trough moves eastward allowing for the influence of the surface high to take over will allow temps to warm up degree or two warmer in the afternoon. With high pressure now the dominant factor, lighter winds are here to stay for Wednesday and Thursday as temps inch closer to 80 for the final on partly cloudies.
