37TH U.S. WOMEN'S MID-AMATEUR · BRAE BURN

USGA

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 2024 - 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

There isn't much that can be done to improve our weather Tuesday but Wednesday is asking you to hold its drink as it makes an attempt. Clear skies overnight allowed temps to fall back into the upper 40s across the region while any holdover moisture has been sucked out of the area with dewpoints dropping down into the mid 40s. Sunny skies will quickly erase the cool, crisp start, warming into the mid 60s between 9 - 10 AM, into the 70s before noon and topping out this afternoon in the upper 70s under a mixture of sunshine and clouds filtering in from our west. Where today improves on that 'ideal' moniker handed out yesterday is with the lack of winds and moisture across the course. Flow will remain light and variable for the morning matches, picking up from the southeast this afternoon at 4 - 5 mph with gusts remaining under 10 mph through the end of play while dewpoints hold steady in the 40s keeping conditions comfortable even in the still air. Light clouds will linger above overnight as flow then shifts over to the southwest for the Final with speeds again near 4 - 5 mph while temps start a few degree warmer, once again warming into the 70s before noon under mostly sunny skies with highs then in the afternoon breaking back into the low 80s as we are celebrating our champion.
