

MONDAY, MAY 18, 2026 - US AMATEUR FOUR - BALL 6 AM FORECAST

Welcome to Match Play! We lost out on a blanket overnight with clouds stopping their advancement southward roughly 50 miles to our north allowing temps to fall an extra couple degrees back into the mid-50s this morning. That lack of overcast skies this morning should help us shed the cooler surface air a little quicker than initially expected with temps climbing up near 70 degrees mid-morning, topping out in the upper 70s near 80 degrees this afternoon. Winds will remain from the southwest throughout the day with intensity increasing through the morning into the late-afternoon blowing 10 - 12 mph gusting near 20 mph at times as play wraps up this evening. Temperatures will start to return to normal on Tuesday, albeit ever so slightly, as a thin layer of clouds limits heating to the mid 80s Tuesday afternoon while winds retreat back into the single digits blowing from the southwest at 6 - 8 mph gusting into the mid-teens at times.
