

TUESDAY, MAY 19, 2026 - US AMATEUR FOUR - BALL 6 AM FORECAST

Clear skies overnight and the depletion of moisture combined for a cool, calm start to the day. Clouds will start to return this afternoon keeping temperatures well below average once again as we top out in the low 80s while winds lay down somewhat from the previous three days. Flow will rotate from the northeast to the south this morning, settling out of the southwest this afternoon with averages in the 8 - 10 mph range gusting into the mid-teens at times with those gusts often associated with clouds passing overhead this afternoon. Thicker cloud cover will linger overnight into Wednesday morning helping to keep our overnight low closer to 60 degrees as Wednesday activities get underway with winds once again light available. Cloud cover will dissipate through the morning allowing clear skies for play Wednesday afternoon as temperatures work their way into the mid-80s coupled with winds from the southwest at 7 - 9 mph gusting into the mid-teens at times.
